INITIAL DECISION AND ORDER

Statement of the Case

An Appeal has been filed on behalf of the property owner for a pro-rated assessment with the State Board of Equalization on October 12, 2007. The subject property is presently valued as follows:

LAND VALUE	IMPROVEMENT VALUE	TOTAL VALUE	ASSESSMENT
$100,000	$443,600	$543,600	$135,900

This matter was reviewed by the undersigned administrative law judge pursuant to Tennessee Code Annotated (T.C.A.) §§ 67-5-1412, 67-5-1501 and 67-5-1505. This hearing was conducted on March 6, 2008, at the Davidson County Property Assessor's Office. Present at the hearing were Lemuel R. Waitman, the taxpayer who represented himself and Mr. Jason Poling, Residential Appraiser, Division of Assessments appeared for the Metro. Property Assessor.

FINDINGS OF FACT AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

Subject property consists of a single family residence located at 302 Fairfax Avenue in Nashville, Tennessee.

The taxpayer contends that the property is worth $439,672¹. Mr. Waitman stated that the home was built in 1930² and compared to other homes in the area is valued too high. He gave as an example a home located at "315 Fairfax that has been for sale on his block for over 8 months and is listed for $490,000. This house has a larger lot, is further away from the freeway, has 3,530 square feet and has a garage". Mr. Waitman also indicated that another home on his block (313 Fairfax Avenue) that had been for sale had been taken off the market.

Mr. Waitman went on to state that the actual cost of the remodel was $177,784 with the addition of some new appliances that it was anticipated that he would receive an 82.5% return on the investment of the improvements made to the home. The taxpayer also feels that there has been a reversal in the hyper-inflated real estate market based on his research and analysis which would support his position on the diminution in value.³

The assessor contends that the property should be valued at $543,600 based on his analysis using the sales comparison approach. Upon the application of a comparable sales analysis using six comparable sales introduced using a paired data analysis on sales in the subject neighborhood.

The germane issue is the value of the property as of August 1, 2007.⁴

The basis of valuation as stated in T.C.A. § 67-5-601(a) is that "[t]he value of all property shall be ascertained from the evidence of its sound, intrinsic and immediate value, for purposes of sale between a willing seller and a willing buyer without consideration of speculative values"

After having reviewed all the evidence in this case, the administrative judge finds that the subject property should be valued at $ 543,600 based upon the presentation of the Davidson County Assessor. The administrative judge finds that in an April 10, 1984, decision the State Board of Equalization in Laurel Hills Apartments, et. al. (Davidson County, Tax Years 1981 and 1982), held that "as a matter of law property in Tennessee is required to be valued and equalized according to the "Market Value Theory," should also be considered in the analysis of this case.

As stated by the State Board, the Market Value Theory requires that property "be appraised annually at full market value and equalized by application of the appropriate appraisal ratio . . ." Id. at 1.(emphasis added)

The Assessment Appeals Commission further elaborated upon the concept of equalization in Franklin D. & Mildred J. Herndon (Montgomery County, Tax Years 1989 and 1990) (June 24, 1991), when it rejected the taxpayer's equalization argument reasoning in pertinent part as follows:

In contending the entire property should be appraised at no more than $60,000 for 1989 and 1990, the taxpayer is attempting to compare his appraisal with others. There are two flaws in this approach. First, while the taxpayer is certainly entitled to be appraised at no greater percentage of value than other taxpayers in Montgomery County on the basis of equalization, the assessor's proof establishes that this property is not appraised at any higher percentage of value than the level prevailing in Montgomery County for 1989 and 1990. That the taxpayer can find other properties which are more under appraised than average does not entitle him to similar treatment. Secondly, as was the case before the administrative judge, the taxpayer has produced an impressive number of "comparables" but has not adequately indicated how the properties compare to his own in all relevant respects. . . . (emphasis added) Final Decision and Order at 2.

See also Earl and Edith LaFollette, (Sevier County, Tax Years 1989 and 1990) (June 26, 1991), wherein the Commission rejected the taxpayer's equalization argument reasoning that "[t]he evidence of other tax-appraised values might be relevant if it indicated that properties throughout the county were under appraised . . ." Final Decision and Order at 3.

Additionally, the taxpayers argument for equal treatment is without merit. The case law is replete with cases that essentially hold that it is of no consequence how much or how little your neighbors' property is valued but being able to demonstrate by competent evidence the fair market value of your own property that is essential in proving the County Boards values are incorrect.

As the Assessment Appeals Commission noted in Payton and Melissa Goldsmith, Shelby County, Tax year 2001, in quoting the Tennessee Supreme Court in the case of Carroll v. Alsup, 107 Tenn. 257, 64 S.W.193 (1901):

It is no ground for relief to him; nor can any taxpayer be heard to complain of his assessments, when it is below the actual cash value of the property, on the ground that his neighbors' property is assessed at a less percentage of its true or actual value than his own. When he comes into court asking relief of his own assessment, he must be able to allege and show that his property is assessed at more than its actual cash value. He may come before an equalizing board, or perhaps before the courts, and show that his neighbors' property is assessed at less than its actual value, and ask to have it raised to his own, . . . (emphasis supplied)

Since the taxpayer is attempting to change the status quo, the burden of proof is on the taxpayer. See State Board of Equalization Rule 0600-1-.11(1) and Big Fork Mining Company v. Tennessee Water Control Board, 620 S.W. 2d 515 (Tenn. App. 1981).

With respect to the issue of market value, the administrative judge finds that Mr. Waitman simply introduced insufficient evidence to affirmatively establish the market value of subject property as of the relevant assessment date pursuant to Tenn. Code Ann. § 67-5-504(a).

As explained by the Assessment Appeals Commission in E.B. Kissell, Jr. (Shelby County, Tax Years 1991 and 1992) as follows:

The best evidence of the present value of a residential property is generally sales of properties comparable to the subject, comparable in features relevant to value. Perfect comparability is not required, but relevant differences should be explained and accounted for by reasonable adjustments. If evidence of a sale is presented without the required analysis of comparability, it is difficult or impossible for us to use the sale as an indicator of value. . . . Final Decision and Order at 2. (Emphasis supplied)

In analyzing the arguments of the taxpayer, the administrative judge must also look to the applicable and acceptable standards in the industry when attempting to establish an estimation of value for residential property.

The administrative judge finds that the procedure normally utilized in the sales comparison approach has been summarized in one authoritative text as follows:

To apply the sales comparison approach, an appraiser follows a systematic procedure.

1. Research the competitive market for information on sales transactions, listings, and offers to purchase or sell involving properties that are similar to the subject property in terms of characteristics such as property type, date of sale, size, physical condition, location, and land use constraints. The goal is to find a set of comparable sales as similar as possible to the subject property.
2. Verify the information by confirming that the data obtained is factually accurate and that the transactions reflect arm's-length, market considerations. Verification may elicit additional information about the market.
3. Select relevant units of comparison (e.g., price per acre, price per square foot, price per front foot) and develop a comparative analysis for each unit. The goal here is to define and identify a unit of comparison that explains market behavior.
4. Look for differences between the comparable sale properties and the subject property using the elements of comparison. Then adjust the price of each sale property to reflect how it differs from the subject property or eliminate that property as a comparable. This step typically involves using the most comparable sale properties and then adjusting for any remaining differences.

Reconcile the various value indications produced from the analysis of comparables into a single value indication or a range of values. [Emphasis supplied] Appraisal Institute, The Appraisal of Real Estate at 422 (12th ed. 2001). Andrew B. & Majorie S. Kjellin, (Shelby County, 2005)
